The Gentleman's House: Or, How to Plan English Residences, from the Parsonage to the Palace; with Tables of Accommodation and Cost Robert Kerr

Robert Kerr (1823 – 1904) was a British architect, architectural writer and co-founder of the Architectural Association. He was a prolific writer as well as lecturer on architectural subjects. Geoffrey Tyack describes his book The Gentleman's House, or, How to plan English residences, from the parsonage to the palace (1864) as "the most lucid and encyclopaedic account available of mid-Victorian domestic planning". Kerr was also the editor of the third edition of James Fergusson's History of the modern styles of architecture (London 1891) which he expanded.
